This is where the trill keys are located. They are a world's first on a Wave-Line-patented flute. This means that your first flute is also a real flute.

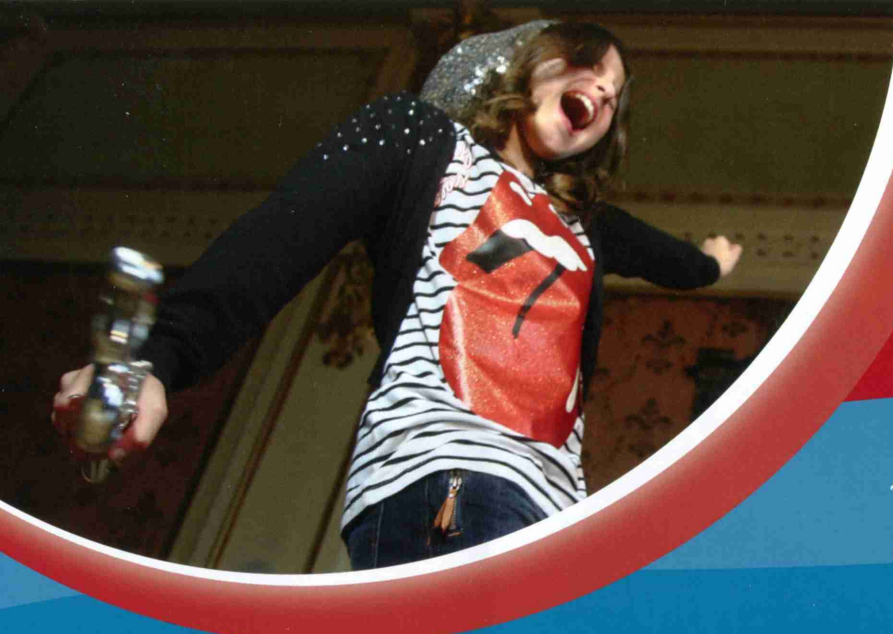

The two G keys have been moved slightly forward so that playing these notes becomes a breeze. Thanks to the "E keywork", you can play high Es as easily as any other note.

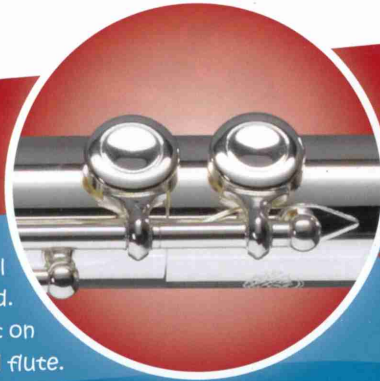

This is the foot joint. It allows you to play all notes down to the low C (like on a standard flute). That explains why this flute is called

Item no. JPKIT-510

Are you planning on playing a regular flute one day? Or do you use the loop for your practice sessions at home, while preferring a “straight” flute for your performances? Or...

The good news is: you won't have to purchase a second flute! Using this optional kit, you can transform your C-Loop into a regular flute. The kit contains all required accessories: adapter, headjoint, case and a padded bag.

Here's how it works: insert the adapter rather than the loop with the short headjoint into the body. Be careful to align the marks: > | <. Insert the straight headjoint into the adapter—and you are all set! Your straight flute fits snugly in the supplied case, so there is no need to remove the adapter when you finish. C-Loop + kit = music fun for years to come!

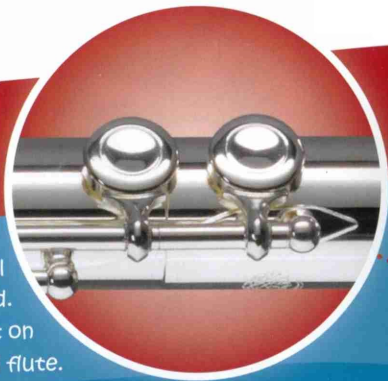

The kit's headjoint is fitted with a riser made of solid silver for a gloriously full sound.

This is the best part, the patented Wave-Line bow, or "loop". It allows us to build a shorter instrument so that children aged 8 and above can start playing the flute without hurting their back.

In addition to being healthier, this also allows you to progress faster, because playing this instrument is more fun. Besides, the loop also ensures that your flute is perfectly balanced.
